Mind and Memory Building Better Brains

Power of Puzzles Will Help You Avoid Dementia

Solving puzzles has exceptional mental, and emotional benefits. For those slightly older, the benefits of puzzle solving include enhanced memory, better cognitive skills, improved concentration and better overall health and balance.

Keeping your mind “Physically Fit” is important to one’s health. It is a known fact among doctors and researchers that senior brain games and mentally stimulating leisure activities help maintain one’s cognitive abilities that can decline as people age and brain activity is reduced.

The two hemispheres of your brain control different functions. The left side of your brain controls analytic and logical thinking and the right side controls creativity. When you are working on puzzles, you are engaging both sides and giving your brain a real workout.
